Director transitions to Non-Executive Director role

ASX: IMB

Intelligent Monitoring Group Limited ("IMG" or "the Company") (ASX: IMB) announces that Executive Director Rob Hilton, will now transition to the role of Non-Executive Director.

Over the past four years, Rob successfully built Mammoth Technology Group from the ground up, which was acquired by IMG in 2022. Since then, as an Executive Director, Rob set up a Melbourne office for IMG, rebranded the direct business to Mammoth Security and oversaw the launch of the first Mammoth Security Lab in Chapel Street Prahran. He also delivered a suite of products and technology in the security business.

In the last 12 months, Rob has also presided over a number of sales initiatives, which included getting the Company's Monkey Vision "Simple" cameras onto the shelves of Bunnings stores. During this process he also built a team to take over the day-to-day operations of the business.

Rob has now completed his hands on role in building Mammoth Technology Group (MTG). As part of this process, Rob will continue to provide innovative and supportive input to IMG in his ongoing capacity as a Non-Executive Director and as a large shareholder of the Company. His counsel as a seasoned and professional expert on products, marketing and branding will continue to be of great benefit to the Group as a whole.

Rob will be returning to TPF Group in an executive capacity, the company he founded 35 years ago, to head up TPF Innovation.

Managing Director, Dennison Hambling commented:

"Rob has been a significant and valuable part of our executive management team over the past 12 months and worked hard within the Group to uniquely position Mammoth Security in the marketplace. He scored some lucrative deals for the Monkey Vision cameras which included placement on the shelves of Bunnings stores. He will continue to provide guidance and advice in his role as a Non-Executive Director and significant shareholder, with his counsel being highly sought by the Board."
